Dear Sir/Madam,

We're one of the UK's leading hearing healthcare experts and have been looking after the nation's hearing health for over 50 years. We have over 300 locations nationwide.

We've recently started offering private ear wax removal as one of our services.

We know that many GP practices no longer offer ear wax removal as a core service, so if you have patients that you feel would benefit from having their ear wax professionally removed, please do refer them to us so that we can help them.

What we offer:

- Removal via micro-suction
- Nationwide locations
- 50+ years' experience
- From £70 per appointment*

For more information about our process, you can visit hiddenhearing.co.uk. You'll find enclosed a sample leaflet as well as a poster for you to display in your practice. If you do think that this is something from which your patients would benefit, or would like more leaflets or information, please contact us at waxremoval@hiddenhearing.co.uk.

Thank you for taking the time to read this letter and we look forward to hearing from you soon.

Yours faithfully,

Claire Robinson
Marketing Director

"My dad came in today to have the wax from his ears taken out. The lady was amazing, she spoke to Dad very slowly and loudly, and explained everything. He could hear after, not perfectly, but so much better. Would recommend."

In the UK,
2.3 million
adults suffer from excess wax*

What is ear wax and how can it cause me problems?

Ear wax is natural. It's a self-cleaning, moisturising secretion that keeps your ears healthy. It works its way out of your ear, collecting debris like hair and dry skins cells, as well as bacteria that could lead to an ear infection.

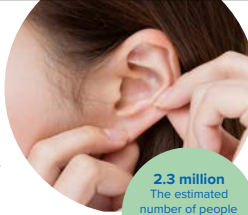

Since everyone's different, the amount of ear wax we produce varies from person to person. If you produce a lot of ear wax, there are a few reasons why it can start to cause you problems. You might have:

- narrow or damaged ear canals
- lots of hair in your ear canals
- skin conditions around your ear or on your scalp
- an inflamed ear canal ("swimmer's ear")

For some of us, particularly the older we get, the wax we produce is just a bit harder and drier.

Some people don't like the idea of ear wax, but it's important to remember that ear wax build-up is not a sign of poor hygiene. Healthy ears are supposed to produce wax.

But wax can become impacted and block the ear canal, which can affect your hearing and cause other uncomfortable symptoms.

2.3 million
The estimated number of people
who suffer from ear
wax problems in the UK annually*

What are the symptoms of ear wax build-up?

If you've got ear wax build-up, you might experience some of the following:

- hearing loss
- earache or the feeling that your ears are blocked
- tinnitus, i.e. ringing or buzzing in your ears
- vertigo, i.e. feeling dizzy and sick

Can I remove wax myself?

Your first stop for the above symptoms should be your GP or pharmacist. If ear wax build-up is behind your discomfort, you can get over-the-counter ear drops, like Earol®, that soften the wax so it comes out on its own naturally.

You should not stick anything in your ear, like cotton buds. This can make things worse by pushing the wax further down your ear. So if you're suffering from build-up and ear drops aren't enough, you're probably going to need to see a specialist who can remove it for you. Unfortunately, not all GP practices offer ear wax removal.

How do you remove my wax?

We remove excess wax using micro-suction. It's a safe and pain-free procedure where the wax is gently sucked out of your ear using a very small tube. This sits in a hand-held device with a screen, so we can have a close-up view of the inside of your ear.

How often should wax be removed?

Wax build-up can vary from person to person. Once you have spoken to one of our specialists they will be able to recommend the best course of action for you.

How much does it cost to get my wax removed?

Our prices start at £60 per appointment for both ears. To cancel, you must give us at least two clear working days' notice, otherwise your appointment will be non-refundable.

What happens at my wax removal appointment?

Before your appointment

For the five days before your appointment, we'll ask that you use Earol®. This olive oil ear wax softener makes it easier for our ear care practitioners to remove your excess wax on the first attempt.

During your appointment

- We'll ask you some questions of your general hearing health.
- Once you're happy to go ahead, we'll ask you to use Earol®. This olive oil ear wax softener makes it easier for our ear care practitioners to remove your excess wax on the first attempt.
- If we can see a wax build-up, we'll use a very small suction tube into your ear, connected to the same device that shows you a real-time image of your ear earlier.
- The tube will gently suck up the wax.
- It's a gradual process of clearing wax, so it can be a bit of a slow process. Sometimes one piece, but cleaning as much as possible can often be a slow process.
- If the wax is too hard to remove, we'll use Earol® some more to make a second appointment easier.

After your appointment

- Once we have removed your wax, we'll do a short hearing screening to check your hearing is working as it should. If we do spot anything, we'll require further investigation, so we'll book an appointment for you to see one of our hearing care experts free of charge.
- We will advise you when we next need to see you and book an appointment accordingly.

A WORLD OF FLAVOURS AND INGREDIENTS

It's not easy to think of a country whose food is as rich and diverse as it is in Turkey. Thanks to the varied climate and landscapes, each region boasts its own speciality ingredients. Goat's milk, yoghurt comes from the cool mountains, rich olive oil from the warm valleys, and spicy meat from the hot deserts of the south. It's also no surprise that many delicious fruits and nuts originated here, including cherries, apricots, almonds and figs.

Surrounded by the Mediterranean, Aegean and Black Seas, Turkey makes good use of the fish and seafood to be found in plentiful supply off its shores. Savour the catch of the day grilled over charcoal – the way it's been done for centuries. In the north, fishing is so embedded in the community there are even traditional dances inspired by the quick movements of the fish in the water, whilst across the country, home (or anchovy), is the hero ingredient in over 40 dishes.

Prepare and enjoying food has always been a serious pastime in Turkey. As early as the 6th century, the Romans established cooking methods still used today, such as baking bread in clay ovens. In the centuries that followed, the Ottoman Dynasty became known for beautifully prepared cuisine, with hundreds of cooks working their magic in the royal kitchens.

Turkish tradition dictates that every meal is a shared affair and good food is to be savoured, not rushed. The accompanying hospitality reflects the respect that surrounds culinary efforts of all kinds, and also the value that the locals place on time together around the table: a cherished opportunity to relax, catch up and bask in the warm glow of companionship from those who matter most.

WHY WE FELL FOR PUGLIA...

While some destinations wear their holiday credentials like a celebrity dressed to impress, Puglia's many virtues are subtle and run deeper – but to get to know this very different side of Italy is undoubtedly to love her.

From Barietta to Belpasso, Puglia's architectural identity reflects the diversity of its cultural influences. Those who pioneered her across the centuries also shaped the region's distinctive architecture: grand cathedrals, grand churches and humble family homes of striking beauty – and while 20th-century developers have added life to the largest cities, go beyond the suburbs into the ancient Old Towns and it's like prying open an eyelid to see a gem.

It's time for your check-up

Dear Title Description Surname

It's been a year since you had your hearing aids fitted. Now it's time to make sure you're getting the most out of your hearing and your hearing aids.

Book your free check-up today – call 0800 019 2576

Why do you need to see us again?

Your hearing can change over time. Come and see us at least once a year as this is crucial for maintaining your hearing health. Make a hearing test part of your annual health check-up, in the same way you'd routinely visit the dentist or optician. Book today and we will:

- Retest your hearing. This will help you stay on top of your hearing health.
- Reprogramme and fine-tune your hearing aids if there have been any changes to your hearing or lifestyle.
- Answer any queries you have about your hearing or hearing aids.

We'll service your hearing aids too

Bring your hearing aids to your check-up and we'll service them for free. Remember that once your two-year warranty expires, in the unlikely event that your aids need to be sent back to the manufacturer for repair, charges may apply.*

Book your free check-up today

Dear Mr/s Sample

When you have a hearing loss, it doesn't just affect you, but those closest to you too. Taking action on a hearing loss allows you to reconnect with friends and family.

You'll no longer:

- be left out of conversations
- constantly have to ask friends to repeat themselves
- struggle to keep up in family gatherings and get-togethers.

Reconnecting with people you care about most means being able to join in the conversation, regardless of what's happening around you.

Introducing Speech-in-Noise tests
Background noise is the number one complaint of people who might be experiencing some degree of hearing loss.

You might find yourself struggling to keep up with conversations in challenging listening environments, such as:

- Pubs and restaurants
- Dinner parties and family gatherings
- Work meetings
- Sporting events.
